HEAVY LAND SLIDES.

Workmen on the Oregon Division Have

Lots of Trouble.

From Sacramento's Special Correspondent.

Sims, February 3d.—This is the fourth day that rain has been falling continually here and elsewhere along the coast, and there are no signs of its cessation. Rain fell in torrents at Gibson side track all last night, and to-day it has been raining hard and steady all the time. Yesterday there were reports that the slide at Tunnel 9 would be cleared away by to-day, but the shovels were brought up to work this morning they were surprised to find all the space they had shoveled filled up again by a huge amount of fresh rock and snow, which had slid down from the top of the big hill to the side track, making the slide larger than it was when they first went to work at it.

The north end of the tunnel is completely filled up from the new slide that came down last night. To-day rocks and large slabs of slate have been rolling down continuously, and even if the storm would cease, work trains would not be able to get through here for three days at least.

As long as the rain keeps up as it has today, but little headway can be made. The men can be worked to little advantage when the rain is falling in torrents and there are great dangers of rocks sliding down upon them.

To-day the men are engaged in transferring wood and supplies from the work train on the south side of the tunnel to the one on the north side. The engines in the

BALLOT-BOX FORGERY.

More Testimony Taken Before the House

Committee.

WASHINGTON, February 3d.—The House

Committee investigating the Ohio ballot-box forgery began its hearing again to-day.

Representative Whitney of Michigan described the forgery and his signature to the ballot-box forgery.

Powell Crossly, formerly associated with Butterworth in the forgery, said that he was not in 1888 about his "box."

Wood told him in 1888 about his "box."

and that John R. McLean and T. C. Campbell were engineering it, and were going to the American people would tolerate an introduction of the bill. He had no intention that Butterworth had anything to do with the forgery, and believed Butterworth did not know Wood until after the publication.

Representative James E. Campbell of Ohio was the first to present the evidence of the forgery. He said that he had never seen any of the men who were connected with the forgery, and that he had never seen

any of the men who were connected with

any of the men who were connected with

STORY OF A SECRET MARRIAGE.

The Montana Democratic Senators

Will Hardly be Able to Secrete Their Seats.

Montana's Democratic Senators Will Fall in the Turbulence.

INDIANAPOLIS, February 3d.—The Journal's Washington correspondent telegraphs the following: The New York World has been told that Hon. S. T. Hauser, Montana's Democratic ex-Governor, which has attracted widespread attention among the Democrats in Congress, and which confirms the statement made, although these es, that Governor Hauser does not believe that McGinnis and Clark (Democrats) were in the course of this interview, and on the fact that the Governor said that he was not admitted to the Senate, and that he would not have been seen here except to go through the form of electing

Democrats to confront the Republican Senators.

Messrs. McGinnis and Clark have heretofore been shown very little consideration on the hands of the Democratic members of the Senate here, and after this opinion from the highest Democratic authority in Montana they will receive less consideration from the Senate.

Governor Hauser's admission that they were merely sent here to make a show and that they were not legally elected comes like a thunderclap to the Democrats both in Congress and in the State, and heretofore believed that these Democratic Senators had some real claim to an election.

The few with whom your correspondent has talked admit that the case now bears an entirely different attitude from what it was when the Governor was elected, and
